STEPHENSON ATTACKS INSTALLMENT-BUYING

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' Association, today attacked installment buying and called for debunking of the American standard of living.

In an address before the business policy forum of the school of business and civic administration of the College of the City of New York, he blamed "false business philosophy" for the present economic doldrums, and cited expansion of credit machinery both in the speculative security markets and in consumer markets through the installment system.

"A tremendous expansion of immediate consumer purchasing power was brought about," he said, "by installment credit, by which millions of our people were enabled to anticipate sober earning powers of half a dozen years and use them for a tremendous volume of automobiles, washing machines, electric refrigerators and endless other industrial products."

He said he did not believe the standard of living should be lowered, but he did believe it should be based on sounder realities—"in the manner of the modern biographers of national heroes, it should be debunked."

"High wages," he said, "can be paid only so long as the means is produced to pay them with. They have been paid by the highly mechanized mass production industries on the theory that since a man was able to produce, say, twice as much automobile value in a day as formerly, he, therefore, earned and could be paid much higher wages."

"This would be all very well if all lines of productive workers were enabled to produce their type of wealth at an equivalently faster rate also. If they do not, there comes a time when there is no longer equilibrium of various kinds of wealth for a steady interchange."

Any effort to raise the standard of living, Mr. Stephenson said, can be only temporarily successful if it is based on inflated consumer credit.

He said he had no illusions about what economic conferences can accomplish, but the present was a good time for "sober counseling together."

Notable Progress Made in Preparing Nation For "Scientific" Wars, Army Gas Chief Says

Just what forms of new gases to exterminate a prospective enemy army have been developed by the chemical warfare service of the United States army since the World War are closely guarded secrets, but notable progress has been made to prepare the nation in event of the so-called scientific wars of the future, it was indicated Tuesday night by Major General H. L. Gilchrist, head of the army's chemical warfare service.

General Gilchrist addressed the Atlanta section of the American Chemical Society at Georgia Tech Tuesday night. He was brought to Atlanta through efforts of the reserve officers' schools of the fourth corps area, before which he will lecture at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Taft hall, city auditorium.

While reticent on any definite developments of the chemical warfare service, General Gilchrist indicated that the next war would witness extensive use of gas as a lethal weapon and for harassing the enemy, as well as for combating gas attacks attempted by opponents. Concerning the prospects of another war, the general was entirely noncommittal.

Gas vs. Gas.
Gas would be used to fight gas, he told his audience Tuesday night.

This is one of the new developments that he believed would see wide usage in any future combat. "We would undertake to neutralize the effect of the enemy's gases with other gases as the most efficient method," the head of the chemical warfare department stated.

Asserting that the use of gas as a weapon of warfare would not be outlawed as "inhumane," General Gilchrist said that, although the term humane has entered into the discussion of war, if war is humane then it is not war. "However, statistics show that gases are not the most inhumane means of warfare. The percentage of deaths among gas casualties was only 2 per cent, while deaths among non-gas casualties amounted to 24 per cent," the general stated. Another innovation that will be made in future wars due to research of the chemical warfare department along preventive lines, the general predicted, will be the testing of men for "gas susceptibility." He pointed out that the same gas administered under identical conditions may have entirely different effects on different individuals.

Drama Workshop Pleases Audience With 'Contagion'

Members of the Drama Workshop, under the direction of Miss Nau Bagley-Stebens, Tuesday night presented their third play of the current season in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. The play, entitled "Contagion," was written by Jean Alexander, of Morganton, N. C., when Miss Alexander was a student in the play-writing class at Agnes Scott College.

Whooping cough, quarantine restrictions and a glib, if somewhat docile, burglar, whose interest in portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds is heightened by the fact that safes are sometimes concealed behind them—these were the principal ingredients of the comedy which, viewed as the production of a fledgling playwright, had much to recommend it. If the structure of the play was somewhat faulty, the dialogue was remarkably good, and other defects had parallel virtues which, on the whole, outweighed them.

The work of Miss Winifred Orr and George Bush deserved special commendation. Other players were Leone Robertson Foote, Nancy Wilson and Walter Foote. The play was directed by Ben Atchison and Mary Martin Ramage. It will be repeated Thursday night at the Druid Hills school. —B. C.

Von Herrmann, the government weather forecaster, announced Tuesday, and is not likely to return for some time. Instead Atlanta is to enjoy a return of spring weather today, the meteorologist said.

Today's temperatures will range between 45 and 55 degrees, Mr. Von Herrmann said, duplicating the range recorded Tuesday.

DR. F. ELIOT WHITE LOSES HIS PASTORATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(UP)—Dr. F. Eliot White, Episcopal clergyman of note whose open acceptance of companionate marriage as a solution to the marriage problem led indirectly to the recent controversy between Ben B. Lindsey and Bishop William T. Manning, has been dismissed from the staff of the Grace Episcopal church, it was announced today.

Dr. White's resignation was accepted after he had written to Bishop Manning demanding that he be given a formal trial on the bishop's "most definite implication" that he had furthered immorality.

His views on companionate marriage led to acceptance of his resignation, according to a statement issued by Dr. W. Russell Bowie.

The Longworths Have Been Wed, Quarter Century

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(UP)—Gowns of a quarter-century ago were brought down from the attic tonight and worn by guests at the dinner party given by the Nicholas Longworths in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Twenty-five years ago "Princess Alice" Roosevelt, her hair in a pompadour and her cream satin dress pinned into a wasp waist, was married to the dapper congressman from Ohio.

The library of the White House was filled with wedding presents, the east room with 1,000 wedding guests, and the streets outside with crowds of spectators.

Longworth chugged up to the White House in a shiny red touring car, 1906 model. Champagne, claret punch, lemonade and ice water were served at the wedding breakfast.

Alice's presents included a diamond tiara, a $25,000 pearl necklace, a $25,000 Gobel tapestry, a pendant and necklace of aquamarine with 120 diamonds set in the pendant, a dog with an Alice blue wardrobe and a half-dozen jeweled and enameled watches.

Black's one-man filibuster was finally ended when the presiding officer, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, ruled that he had held the floor four times on the one bill, and members of the senate are allowed to speak only twice on the same bill during a single day's proceedings.

Bishop W. A. Candler Reported 'Unchanged'

Attaches at Wesley Memorial hospital here Tuesday night stated that Bishop Warren A. Candler, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was resting well and that his condition had changed little since Sunday. He was admitted to the hospital Saturday following complications arising from an attack of influenza. His condition was reported at the hospital as "fair."

BLACK FILIBUSTERS FOR SHOALS ACTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(UP)—A frank attempt to block all appropriation legislation by filibustering was started tonight by Senator Hugo L. Black, democrat, Alabama, in an effort to force action on Muscle Shoals legislation.

After discussing his subject for an hour, Black turned to discussion on such topics as the champion cotton picker of the south. He and his friends resorted to frequent quorum calls—and just at the time when senators were sitting down to dinner—and they also sought to overturn the republican leaders' program for a night session by repeated motions to adjourn.

Black's one-man filibuster was finally ended when the presiding officer, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, ruled that he had held the floor four times on the one bill, and members of the senate are allowed to speak only twice on the same bill during a single day's proceedings.

Who Drew That?

Somebody's scrawled a line up there just where we were going to write an ad about A & P. Come on now, who did it?

Oh... that's different. You say the line shows how fast the retail price of food has been going down? So it does. And it's taken quite a slide, hasn't it? Down to about 15% lower than it was in September, 1929, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Better not erase it then; because A & P had more to do with the drawing of that line than anybody else in the United States. For, as growers and producers have reduced their prices, A & P has reduced the price of food in its stores.

We'll just write the ad way down here in a little bit of space. A & P is the strongest influence in the country for keeping the price of food to the consumer low.

ALABAMA KILLS DOUBLE PRIMARY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The second choice voting system in Alabama primaries today all but passed into history, the senate adopting the single primary bill with minor amendments, 31 to 2.

Concurrence of the house in the senate amendments was quickly received and as soon as the measure providing for the double primary can be engrossed it will be presented to Governor B. M. Miller, who asked its enactment for approval.

Redistricting the state into nine congressional districts to conform to the congressional reapportionment act also needs only the governor's signature to become law. The senate with some discussion from Senator Darden opposing it, adopted the committee substitute for the Morrow bill passed by the house, 28 to 4, and on final passage the measure passed, 27 to 4, with four senators not voting.

House concurrence in the senate substitute also was readily obtained and reported to the senate before the recess was taken.

The redistricting bill as finally passed throws Congressmen L. L. Patterson, now representing the fifth district, and Miles B. Allgood, of the seventh, into the new fifth and leaves the other eight congressmen without a conflict.

York Spends First Day Doing "Light Chores"

Harry York, former councilman from the sixth ward, spent his first day on the chain gang Tuesday doing "light chores" at the River camp, near Adamsville. Officials at the camp said York would be kept on light duty until his physical condition had been built up and he was able to perform heavier tasks.

York entered the gang Monday to serve a four-year term for bribery. In a newspaper interview Tuesday he blamed the Atlanta press for his plight and said he was being made the "goat" by city hall faction enmeshed in the grand jury's probe of municipal affairs. York is the first former member of council to begin a gang term.

DIXIE BANKER URGES MORE STATE CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Strengthening of supervision over state banks and greater efforts by the comptroller of the currency to prevent "bad failures" of national institutions were urged before the senate banking investigating committee today by Charles W. Dixie, chairman of the First National bank of Birmingham.

The first witness from the south to appear before the committee, the failures have come from inadequate management and inadequate supervision. State bank superintendents and examiners, he said, are paid "too meager" salaries and are inexperienced in many cases.

Under questioning by Chairman Glass, Wells said the farm board cotton stabilization operations had "taken away some of the lending in our rural areas" and centralized it elsewhere.

Told by H. Parker Willis, committee expert, there had been 1,292 bank failures last year, he said, adding southern banks were too "remote" from stock market operations to be affected by events in Wall Street in the past two years.

Most of the closed banks in the south, he said, entered the last season "over extended." They were carrying obligations of customers but also were borrowers themselves.

He agreed with previous witnesses that rural banks should be required to have a minimum capitalization of at least $50,000.

U. S. MOVES TO SEIZE TAX EVADER'S ESTATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Internal revenue agents moved today to seize all available property of G. Bryan Pitts and his wife, Mrs. Gladys Pitts, in an effort to collect more than $2,000,000 in alleged unpaid income taxes.

Holding the government entitled to taxes for the years 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930 from the two, the agents went to the courts to file liens on all the property owned by the couple in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Wisconsin, New York, Delaware and Florida.

While Pitts, convicted of a conspiracy to embezzle funds of the F. H. Smith Company while serving as chairman of its board, sat in the District of Columbia jail, Florida agents filed a lien on Al Lado Del Mar, his $500,000 estate at Palm Beach. It was this costly home which the department of justice charged had been purchased in part with money embezzled from the Smith Company.

Washington agents were reported seeking to seize the expensive furs and jewelry of Mrs. Pitts, who is living at one of the city's fashionable hotels.

The agents are also trying to locate several million dollars' worth of foreign government bonds which Pitts has been accused of purchasing with a view to leaving this country.

MELLON NEUTRAL ON OIL IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today refused to take a position on the Capper-Carver bill to limit oil imports for the next three years at 10,000,000 barrels annually.

"The treasury department expresses no opinion as to the policy involved, which is one for the congress to determine," Mellon wrote Chairman Hawley, of the house ways and means committee.

Mellon confined his letter to a technical discussion of the bill, suggesting several clarifications in language. "It is believed there would be no difficulty on the part of the treasury department in the enforcement of the provisions of the proposed bill," Mellon said.

CHURCH MEET BRINGS 2,000 TO CHATTAHOOGA

CHATTAHOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 17.—(AP)—More than 2,000 visitors are in Chattanooga attending the Congress of World Missions of the executive committee of foreign missions, Presbyterian church in the United States which opened at the Memorial auditorium Monday night.

The most important phase of the entire program is the reports of six commissions, which have been at work almost a full year in preparation for this gathering. The first of these reports was presented at the second session of the congress held this morning by the Rev. D. W. Richardson, chairman of commission No. 2, entitled "The Foreign Field, Our Missionary Responsibility." The others will be given at later sessions.

Buffalo Editor Sees Trade Improvement

A slow but steady improvement in business conditions over the entire country is foreseen by Edward H. Butler, editor and owner of the Buffalo Evening News, who, with his wife, formerly Miss Kate Robinson, of Atlanta, is visiting the city this week.

The pendulum had swung too far upward in 1929 and it had to go a long way back when it turned its course. The new upward swing that was bound to come has begun, without doubt, but fortunately for all of us, the motion is not going to be a violent one," Mr. Butler says.

Tom Brannon's Orchestra To Play For Brilliant Fashion Extravaganza

Tom Brannon and his orchestra have been engaged to play for the Greater Atlanta Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza which will be the bright particular attraction at the Paramount theater next week in connection with two big screen features. This popular orchestra leader recently returned to Atlanta after a two years' tour of the principal cities of the United States and has since been featured frequently in radio broadcasts besides filling engagements at the Druid Hills, Capital City and Nine O'Clock Clubs.

Brannon was for eight years manager of the original Warner's Seven Aces and during that period served as musical director of the Hotel Pabody in Memphis, where the Aces played two successive years and built up an enviable following.

With 40 charming members of the younger social contingent displaying the loveliest of the new spring creations furnished by J. P. Allen & Co., with delightful song and dance numbers interspersed between the fashion sequences, the event promises to be both colorful and entertaining.

Charles Wynne, whose pleasing personality and excellent tenor voice have long made him a local favorite, will sing several numbers in the show. Virginia Semon and Leonard White will present their star pupils in a number of clever dance specialties, which means entertainment of a high order to those who know the exacting standards of the Semon-White studio.

Among the other leading merchants participating in this event are Maurice's Men's Wear, Anthony's Shoes, the Nunnally Company, Jacobs Pharmacy, C. J. Kamper Grocery Company, Foremost Dairies, Musser's Meats, and the Nunnally Company, Georgia Power Company, Southern Business College, Wofford Oil Company and the Duffie-Freeman Furniture Company, each of whom will be represented on the Paramount stage by some member of the attractive group modeling the fashion creations.

Sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle as a benefit for Tallulah Falls school, the mountain institution owned and operated by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, the fashion revue has the co-operation of The Constitution, which has joined with the Paramount theater in guaranteeing the circle a percentage of the receipts in this connection.

Tickets are now on sale at the headquarters office on the mezzanine of J. P. Allen's, where representatives of the circle are in charge during the store's opening hours. The Paramount theater's regular evening show of 50 cents prevails. Inasmuch as the circle's largest percentage comes from the advance sale of tickets, the public is urged to procure tickets through the Young Matrons' Circle.

W. VIRGINIA ABOLISHES DRY LAW DEPARTMENT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Two bills proposing abolition of the state prohibition department as an economy measure were passed by the house of delegates today.

One bill, which would transfer certain licensing duties to the state tax commissioner was passed, 50-42. The other, to abolish the state prohibition department and thus place enforcement of the state prohibition law in the hands of state, county and municipal police authorities, was passed, 48 to 42.

The bills were sent to the senate, which previously had adopted a resolution placing itself on record as opposed to the abolition of the prohibition department.

MRS. F. F. STEPHENS DIES IN MISSOURI

Why You Can Drive the New Ford So Many Thousands of Miles

Unusual care in manufacturing is reflected in the smooth, reliable performance of the new Ford and its economy and long life.

THE NEW FORD has made an unusual record for reliability and long life. In police service it has been driven 100,000 and 120,000 miles under the severest driving conditions. Leading industrial companies operating large fleets of Fords report "satisfactory economical service" after many months and years of constant use. The value of good materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first 25,000 miles.

Throughout the chassis, you find many reasons for the good performance of the Ford. None is more important than the crankshaft.

The crankshaft is frequently called the heart of the automobile because of the part it plays in transmitting the power developed by the pistons to the flywheel and driveshaft. It must be properly balanced to insure smooth operation. It must be accurate in size to insure proper clearance in the bearings. It must be true in alignment and weight to reduce friction and give long continuous service without adjustment.

The crankshaft of the new Ford has great strength because it is made of carbon manganese steel, specially developed by Ford metallurgists. It will resist a twisting stress of 2½ tons at a leverage of twelve inches from its axis.

In the many steps in its manufacture, the Ford crankshaft is machined and polished to measurements as fine as one-half of a thousandth part of an inch. In all, Ford crankshafts receive more than 150 checks for accuracy.

The greatest care is taken to make sure that the Ford crankshaft will be in perfect balance in all positions and at all speeds. The machines for the dynamic balance tests are set upon foundations of gum rubber and are so delicately adjusted that the very air that surrounds them is first cleansed and then held at 68 degrees by thermostatic control.

Though weighing many pounds, the Ford crankshaft is so carefully balanced that it will remain motionless when placed upon two perfectly leveled parallel bars,

This illustration shows the Ford cylinder bloc (A), piston (B), connecting rod (C), flywheel (D), and crankshaft (E). The care with which these parts are made is an important factor in the smoothness, reliability, economy and long life of the new Ford.

The Ford crankshaft is made of special carbon manganese steel and balanced statically and dynamically. Ford crankshafts receive more than 150 checks for accuracy.

you can purchase a Ford on convenient, economical terms through the Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.

yet will turn if so small a weight as a ten-cent piece is placed on any connecting-rod bearing.

This same care is followed as standard practice in the manufacture of the Ford flywheel, pistons, connecting-rods, valves, camshaft and other mechanical parts.

You can see, therefore, why the Ford delivers reliable, economical service for so many thousands of miles. It gives good performance on the road because good performance has been built into it at the factory.

Embryonic Presidential Booms For Roosevelt Rapped By Solon

Georgia legislators and other friends of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the democratic hope for the presidency in 1932, were warned Tuesday against the activities of self-appointed organizations seeking to "promote" a campaign for the New York governor at this time.

The warning was sounded in the house and came from Representative G. A. Huddleston, of Meriwether, in whose county the Warm Springs Foundation is located, and who himself is a close personal friend of Governor Roosevelt.

Huddleston arose in the house, just before it adjourned, and called attention to cards which had been liberally circulated inviting members to attend a meeting of the "Roosevelt Southern Club" at the Kimball House Tuesday evening. The cards were signed by "F. B. Summers, executive chairman."

"I have been informed that this man Summers has stated that I am in favor of his movement," Huddleston said.

Pershing Firmly Refuses To Yield to General Foch On Troop Shipment Plan

Generalissimo Sees Disaster Threatening Unless Americans Hasten—Pershing Urges Washington to Call Out New Draft of 1,500,000 Men—British Try to Put Over Plane Agreement by Ruse and Fail.

CHAPTER XXVIII

I left London April 23, 1918, and crossed to France in a British destroyer. Colonel Mott was at Boulogne with a request for me from General Foch to come to Sarcus. I learned then that the 26th division, at Seicheprey, had repulsed a severe trench raid on the night of April 20-21, and had suffered considerable loss.

Arriving at General Foch's headquarters I found Generals Bliss, Harbord and Weygand already there, and after dinner we entered into a general discussion about American troop shipments. The conversation ran as follows:

Foch: "On March 28 you came to offer the services of American troops. I have vivid recollection of the occasion. As to the American divisions, in what order do you think they should be employed?"

Pershing: "The order would be the 26th, 42d, 3d. (The 1st had already been sent to an active front near Amiens). The remnants of the 32d will be ready by May 1."

Foch: "I do not think they can be used before May 5, but the more we put into the line the better it will be. Your 7th division has arrived. I see. What about the 3d and 5th?"

Pershing: "The infantry of the 3d has arrived, and that of the 5th will soon follow."

Foch: "What we need now is infantry, especially the British, on account of the present crisis. That is why the supreme war council at Versailles recommended that all tonnage be devoted to that purpose for the time being. I hope that America may send over as much infantry as possible during the next three months. The other arms to complete your divisions can come afterwards. What do you think of that plan?"

Pershing: "I cannot commit myself to such a proposition. If nothing but infantry and machine gunners are brought over, to the total of 500,000, it will be October or November before the artillery and auxiliary troops could arrive, and we could not foresee the formation of an American army until next spring."

Foch: "I think your calculation is rather pessimistic, for we could begin bringing your other troops in August, but, without considering that point we can furnish you with artillery and personnel and you can have your divisions reconstituted beginning with October. What would you propose in this connection?"

Pershing: "I think we should limit the transportation of infantry to May, and that the artillery and auxiliary troops should come in June. Infantry should not arrive more than a month later than the infantry. Under what conditions would you employ the American infantry units?"

Foch: "A final decision cannot be made on that subject. That will evidently depend upon the degree of instruction of the units. In the case of units that actually confronts the Allied armies it is effective that we lack. The method of employing these units is a question to be settled in due course and according to their efficiency."

Pershing: "I would like to have the conditions under which these units are to be employed determined now, and to fix the time during which the regiments and brigades will be used separately."

Foch: "Make your proposition on that subject."

I then explained the details of the system that was being followed where our divisions were in training with the French, and the plan agreed upon with the British. I said that it was fully understood that if an emergency should arise while our troops were in training they would be used with which they were serving.

General Foch then said:

"I do not doubt the excellency of the method, but I am not sure that we are passing I return to the decision of the supreme war council and I ask you to transport during May, June and July only infantry and machine gun units. Will you consent?"

Pershing: "No, I do not consent. I propose for one month to ship nothing but infantry and machine gun units, and after that the other arms and service of the rear troops to correspond."

Foch: "If you adopt the plan I propose you would have by July 31, 300,000 more American infantry."

Pershing: "You said just now that you would furnish the artillery and even artillerymen, which would be joined with our infantry to complete our divisions. Then why not consent to transport our artillery personnel along with our infantry?"

Foch: "I repeat that it is the infantry of which we have the greatest need at this time. I would like to have General Bliss tell us the considerations which led to the decision taken by the supreme war council at Versailles."

Bliss: "The collective note recommended to the United States to send only infantry until the supreme war council should give instructions to the contrary. The government of the United States, in conformity with this note and with the recommendation of Versailles."

ISSUE TOO IMPORTANT TO DECIDE IN HASTE

Editor Potlikker and Corpone Department, Atlanta Constitution.

In reply your telegram, will take definite stand on this important question within next few days.

I. C. BLACKWOOD, Governor, State of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C.

ENTIRE NATION IS EMBROILED IN CORPONE WAR

The Constitution telegraphed him as follows:

The Constitution appreciates the fine spirit of your loyalty to the resolute cause of potlikker and corpone, and is deeply interested in this great movement. Often the mother of our Corpone and Potlikker editor gave him a bowl of potlikker into which he would crumble corpone when as a child he listened to the stories of Uncle Remus, who never dunked his cornbread.

While Governor Huey Long is attempting to shame the south by seeking to make a myth appear as a fact, Dr. Frank H. Vintell, the famous philosopher, asserts that there is no such word as "dunk" in the dictionary.

The following Associated Press dispatch from New York completes the discomfiture of Louisiana's modern mythologist:

"Dunk" is not yet in the dictionary, but the controversy raging in the south as to whether corpone should be "dunked" or crumbled in potlikker may force it to the attention of the dictionary makers.

Dr. Frank H. Vintell, managing editor of the Funk & Wagnall's dictionary, found the word came from the German "tunken," meaning to dip or immerse in liquid, other than potlikker.

Five Governors Enter Discussion. The editor of the Corpone and Potlikker department received from John G. Pollard, governor of Virginia, who, while cautiously referring to the split in democracy, fails to see that potlikker may lead to the healing of all wounds.

Governor Pollard's telegram reads as follows:

Receving me against introducing another likker question to divide the ranks of democracy.

From Governor W. H. Allfalfa Big Boy of Oklahoma, (Alfalfa Big Boy) of Oklahoma, comes the following typical response:

I suggest we declare a truce between the opposing forces of the potlikker and corpone, and let us have a good old-fashioned dish, hog jowl and pork salad. As for dunking or crumbling the corpone, both sides are partly right, and both are wrong. Let us have a good old-fashioned dish, hog jowl and pork salad.

Governor B. M. Miller, of Alabama, has written me a letter in which he says that he is in favor of the vital issue now stirring the south and infiltrating into other parts of the nation.

The question was a delicate one, but it occurred to me to suggest to the president through the secretary of war, that he might intimate to the Italian government the propriety of completing the unity of command by placing its armies under the control of the others. It was believed that the Italian cabinet might be willing to take the step if it could be done in such a way as to prevent hostile criticism among their own people.

It was thought that if the suggestion should come from the British or French, especially the latter, it would be taken as early as possible. However, no one could describe any but the highest motives to President Wilson in making such a move. However, the question came up for discussion at the next meeting of the supreme war council, which was held at Abbeville, and the authority of General Foch was extended to include the Italian armies. This completed the unity of command from the North sea to the Adriatic.

Tomorrow, Clemenceau incensed British-U. S. arrangement for training of some of our divisions.

Army Orders.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Army orders: Lieutenant Colonel Alexander H. Jones, quartermaster corps, to Fort Rusk, Arkansas department.

Captains Floyd C. Sager, quartermaster corps, to Madison Barracks, Vermont; F. Safford, ordnance department, to Aberdeen proving ground; Stanley G. Beckman, infantry, to Omaha, Neb.; Richard J. H. Hunt, artillery corps, to Hawaiian department.

First Lieutenant James G. Reno, coast artillery, to Hawaiian department. Second Lieutenant James B. Holey, field artillery, to Fort Rusk.

Play Well Received.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—London critics today favorably reviewed "Good Losers," new play by Walter Hackett and Michael Arlen presented in London last night. The play, which was well received by the audience, has an intricate plot which although somewhat bewildering was well acted.

which is subject to serious question itself. Those who contend that this matter of democracy is drunk, are about as numerous as those who say it is eaten. In your last wire you said "inhalad," which is a fair compromise for the main issue, in the state of Texas public opinion and a considerable good etiquette either to dunk or crumble one's cornbread in one's potlikker. If there be any advantage, it would seem on the side of crumpling, for most Texas cornbread is made so delicate of texture and so exquisite of fiber, in order for it to melt in one's mouth, that it falls to pieces when one tries to dunk it, and therefore crumpling is the only practicable means of enjoying the delicacy. Of course this would not apply to corpone of more durable structure.

However, while this issue may be a vital one in those parts, it means little here. My upmost impulse in the matter is to congratulate you and the distinguished Louisiana upon the fact that your states, like my own, are interested in potlikker and not some other kind of liquor.

ROSS S. STERLING, Governor of Texas.

Governor Long Wins One Supporter. Eddie Beck, who sends a telegram dated Atlanta, attempts to settle the matter because he is an authority on doughnut dunking.

Mr. Beck offers to furnish the potlikker and corpone for a contest. His wire follows:

Potlikker Editor, The Constitution:

Never having indulged in potlikker and corpone but as an authority on doughnut dunking, I must throw my support to Governor Long. To settle dispute suggest letting public decide issue. I will furnish corpone and potlikker for test. Why not get Will Rogers' opinion on this momentous issue? Loyal Southerner Sends Message. Corpone and Potlikker Editor, Atlanta Constitution:

Any man who dunks corpone into potlikker would put sugar in butter. Break away from such heresies. Besides dunking is bad manners anyway. Crumbling the corpone is the only technique. When the troops are called for battle I want to be the first volunteer.

JAMES KENDALL BURGESS, Editor Motion Picture Herald.

Chatterbox Expert Chips In. NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Professing to be a potlikker and corpone expert, a journalist at the University of North Carolina and noted collard and chitling expert, told the Raleigh Times today that both Huey Long, governor and senator-elect of Louisiana, and The Atlanta Constitution are wrong in their dispute over whether corpone should be dunked in potlikker.

Mr. Coffin, who hails from Randolph county, where they know their potlikker and wield a wicked corpone, says that the Long method of dunking and The Constitution method of crumpling are both wrong and both are passe.

The only correct and modern way to consume corpone and potlikker, he says, is to hold the corpone, hold it in your left hand while the "good woman" places the potlikker before you in a bowl with a handle on it—then, with the right hand, buttered pone and drink your potlikker.

Editor Anderson's Views. MACON, Ga., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Macon Telegraph editorially adds its own recipe to the controversy between Governor Huey Long, of Louisiana, and The Atlanta Constitution.

"The Constitution has not asked our opinion about the procedure for eating corpone and potlikker," says the Telegraph, "but we have a perfectly swell idea about it—an idea formed 30 or 40 years ago when we first tried it. The corpone should be crumbled in the soup plate, Doctor of Laws Long to the contrary notwithstanding. The potlikker should be poured in upon it. After that has been done, it is ready to be poured in the hog trough. No human being ought to eat it."

Rex and Comus Close Carnival For New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Rex and Comus today gave New Orleans thousands their final thrill of carnival, winding up six days of carefree joy that ended at midnight tonight with the soft pedal of the cathedral Lenten bells ringing in Ash Wednesday.

Promiscuous masking, costuming and fun-making began soon after the dawn and lasted until sundown when the revelers unmasked and gathered again to view the enshrinement of the final reigning god of the season, Comus, the god of mirth, in his night torchlight procession of pageantry.

Rex, the mighty monarch of carnival, who comes once a year to the metropolis of joy with Comus and Caracatus, the king of the Druids, furnished the highlights of the day's parading in their wheeled tableaux of fantasy.

In 20 magnificent floats, Rex unfolded the story of the drama, beginning with the rise and the theater in ancient Greece and running the gamut of the spirit of medieval drama and the Shakespearean era down to the picturesque Mississippi river showboat.

Edward Soule, Rex of 1931, received the keys to the city as his golden chariot paused at city hall. At the Boston Club he paused again to drink to the health of Miss Gladys Gelpi, his queen, whom he joined later with her court at the Rex evening ball.

Comus, in the grand finale of carnival celebrated his diamond jubilee, the 75th anniversary of his carnival dynasty. His pageant carried back to the jewels from Byron, featuring the familiar gems from the pen of the poet of romance and adventure.

"Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," rang through the whole town as merry-makers with band and horn made their rounds on trucks and afoot, clad in silks and satins, shorts and calico pajamas, some as sailors, others as red devils and pirates and many in freakish and odd display, prancing and playing on floats during the day.

Zulu, a huge bejeweled crowd upon his head and wearing feather plumage, savage paint and a grass skirt, was seated upon a throne of strictly African jungle type.

New Orleans took a full holiday and all had a good time.

Mining Engineers Shown Needle That Detects Gold, Diamonds, Oil

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A new kind of compass points to diamonds, gold, oil. The American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers was told about it Monday.

It is a prospector's tool, replacing pack mule, pick and pan. But the prospector must know geology, and the results are no more certain than the old pan, although on a far bigger scale.

The new prospecting was explained by Noel H. Stearn, a consulting geologist of St. Louis. A needle called the Hotchkiss superdip is balanced between gravitation and the same magnetic lines which guide the mariner's compass. It is set to swerve wherever the earth's normal magnetic lines are disturbed.

Such disturbing zones hang in the air above many sorts of buried minerals. Mr. Stearn said the needle had identified eight different natural resources in seven states.

In Arkansas it is the kind of volcanic rock that bears diamonds. There, above three known diamond deposits in Pike county, where several thousand gems have been found, the needle's track when plotted on paper looks as if it is trying to climb a mountain. The deflection is not due to diamonds but to the volcanic rock. It has located indications of seven other valuable deposits hitherto unknown, which Mr. Stearn said may in the course of exploration be found to bear diamonds.

Two other formations identified by the compass are copper, iron, oil, gas, lead, gold and bauxite. They are scattered through the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arizona.

In the Texas Panhandle the needle indicates a range of buried mountains, which seems to be an extension of the Wichita mountains for about 160 miles northward. Knowledge of the existence of this range, said Mr. Stearn, is likely to be useful in exploration for petroleum and gas.

Albanian Dike Bursts.

TIRANA, Albania, Feb. 17.—(AP)—After torrential rains the dike along the River Drinas at Kartice burst and inundated part of the town, severing communications with Bilisht, Follgrina and Bogrodet. A slight earthquake was felt at the same time.

Marriage Simplified.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Turkey has eliminated the first cost of marriage, leaving newlyweds to struggle with the upkeep. Taking cognizance of economic difficulties, the government has announced that marriage certificates legally priced at $2.50, will be issued gratis to couples short of cash.

Dole Fund Increased.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The sum of twenty million pounds—about $100,000,000—was added today to Britain's dole fund by the house of commons which last night accepted recommendations of Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor, for new unemployment loans.

Herbert Bagwell, Rome, Ga., $27, speeding.

N. O. Oren, 132 Ponce de Leon, $27 and bond over under $200 bond, drunk and reckless driving.

Following was fined for alleged illegal parking: A. J. Glisson, $5.

Newspaper Advertising Best, Says Detroit Banker

American Bankers' Association Also Hears That Medium of Daily Paper Produces Finest Results.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Newspapers have outstanding advantages over other advertising media in speed and action and furnish the best medium for the trust company, Charles H. McMahon, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Detroit, told the midwinter trust conference of the trust company division, American Bankers' Association, today.

Mr. McMahon told the conference that daily newspaper reading is an outstanding habit of the American public.

"A financial advertiser has assurance that today he can reach the literate population of any or all communities by advertising in the newspapers," he said. "You may not have listened to a radio today, nor have received any advertising by mail, nor most of you will read the newspaper. Thus newspaper advertising duplicates the influence of all other advertising and touches in addition fields that are exclusively its own."

Despite occasional statements that newspaper space is too costly to be efficient in the present job of a trust company, Mr. McMahon said that as a matter of fact newspaper advertising enjoys the advantage of costing less than any other form of advertising. Population, wealth and buying power are concentrated about the points where daily newspapers are published, he said, and newspaper advertising "opens the door for our representatives and saves their time once they are face to face with their prospects."

SAFETY LAW AIM OF MOTOR GROUP

With a third of the motor vehicle owners in the United States and half of those in Canada now operating under one or more essential provisions of the safety responsibility law, this legislation will be to the forefront in the legislatures now in session in the majority of states, according to Goodwin Yancey, president of the Atlanta Motor Club, which is affiliated with the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Yancey declared that the Atlanta club is solidly behind the movement for this law in Georgia, and that a bill will be introduced at the session of the legislature this summer.

NEW TAILORING STORE WILL BE OPENED HERE

The Schwab Company, retail clothing and tailoring concern, with headquarters at Columbus, Ga., has leased the store at 91 Peachtree street and is now remodeling and redecorating the place, which it will operate as an up-to-date tailoring establishment. It was announced Tuesday.

The Schwab Company, which is said to be exclusively a southern organization, manufactures and sells its clothing at retail through its 21 stores throughout the south. It has been in the clothing business for 18 years and besides offering a complete line of ready-made all-wool suits, at popular prices, operates tailoring shops in connection with the ready-to-wear departments, in which all garments are made to order.

The company opened its first retail store in Columbus, later opening stores in various southern cities. The Atlanta store will be under the management of E. L. Moody.

TENNESSEE BONDS DRAW PROBE FIRE

BY RALPH WHEATLEY.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A double forked inquiry was conducted today by the Tennessee legislative investigators that carried them into the fields of surety bonds for state officials and the failure of the state treasurer's office to withdraw state funds from the Holston Union National Bank at Knoxville after it had heard rumors of its tottering.

Hallam W. Goodloe, deputy chief clerk in the office of the state treasurer, underwent a blistering examination by the committee. He confessed that three days before the Holston Union National Bank failed he drew up a withdrawal check for the $287,000 highway funds on deposit there and went to Knoxville, but instead of cashing it, he returned with a bundle of "cats and dogs" industrial bonds that later proved of little value as security for the deposit. He explained that J. B. Ramsey, president of the bank, convinced him that the bank was solvent and that shortly before that, national examiners had given the bank an O. K.

Mr. Goodloe said that John F. Nolan, state treasurer, had told him to go to Knoxville and protect state deposits after they had heard rumors that the Holston Union National Bank was in a weakened condition. He called on Mr. Ramsey, he said, and told him of the reports and that the president had hooted the idea of insolvency and offered to give him industrial bonds of face value of $374,000 to secure the deposits.

He agreed, he said, to accept them after talking with the state treasurer over the telephone and he brought back to Nashville $124,000 of the bonds while $250,000 of bonds, which later developed were defunct Caldwell and Company securities, were delivered to the treasurer by the Fourth and First National banks on orders of Mr. Ramsey.

Earlier in the hearing, Banks P. Turner, corporation clerk in the office of the secretary of state, testified that before the investigators lifted the lid on the state officials' surety bond situation many of them had no bonds at all and some of them had bonds but had failed to file them in his office as required by law.

But, he explained, since the legislative investigators had started the inquiry last Friday between 75 and 100 state officials had rushed to his office with bonds. He also admitted under questioning that many of the bonds had not been approved by the governor, treasurer and comptroller as the state requires.

Mr. Turner told the committee that last Friday when they started looking into officials' bonds that S. S. Caldwell, commissioner of insurance and banking, did not have any bond on file in his office. He explained that he had taken out a $25,000 bond with the Southern Surety Company of Iowa but that concern had gone out of business and the Southern Surety Company of New York had taken over the bond.

"If it had been on file during the last three months, there would have been only $25,000 to cover two or three hundred thousand dollars flying around in the wind," asked Chairman Faulkner.

After an executive session the committee announced that tomorrow they would turn again to its investigation into the issuance of $50,000,000 of bonds in 1929, before going into the highway department inquiry. Ernest N. Hoston, secretary of state, and Edgar Graham, comptroller, members of the funding board, were listed as tomorrow's witnesses.

Governor Henry H. Horton, replying tonight to a statement by the legislative investigating committee chairman, asked the public "not to form opinions upon the expenditure of money of witnesses testifying before the committee." He promised to account for his administration "at the proper time, in a respectful way."

He denied a statement by Chairman Walter Faulkner that a $29,050,000 bond issue was sold early last year "in absolute disregard of competitive bidding," and cited a statement by the purchasers that they had taken the highway bonds at a loss in order that the highway program might not be halted.

John F. Nolan, state treasurer, had told the committee that although the issue was sold to Caldwell & Company and a group of Tennessee banks on a bid of 4.976 per cent, he had delivered the bonds to Lehman Brothers of New York whose bid of 4.50 had been rejected. Lehman Brothers, he testified, had sold the bonds under the price paid for them and the Tennessee purchasers had made up the difference.

The Tennessee bankers' bid, he related, stipulated that the proceeds were to be placed on deposit at 3 per cent interest in banks they designated and kept there until withdrawn for completed projects, while the Lehman Brothers' bid contemplated no control over the proceeds.

MAJOR CANNON'S COUNSEL TO APPEAL
PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sentenced to serve 90 days in the county jail for violation of the state labor laws, Major Richard M. Cannon was at liberty today under $1,000 bond while his attorneys prepared an appeal.

Major Cannon, a son of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was convicted last Wednesday of failure to pay Mrs. Phyllis Case $33 salary as a teacher in the El Monte Boys' school, of which he was manager.

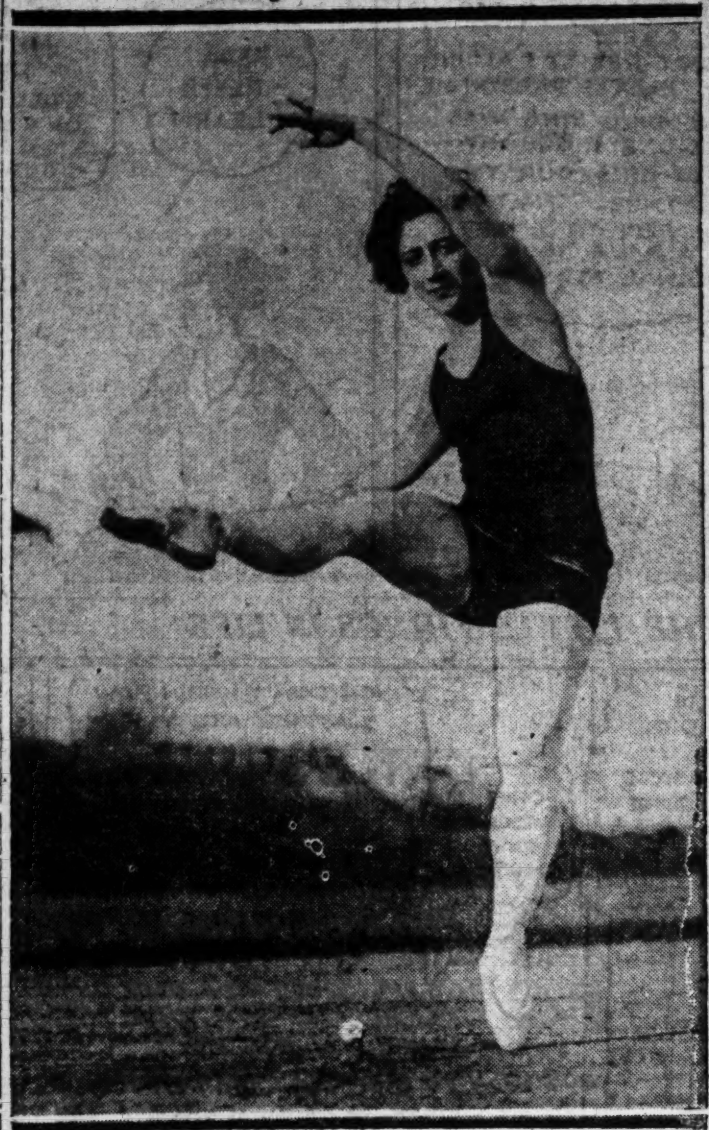

Twice before he was tried on similar charges, but the juries disagreed. Nine other similar charges against him were dismissed when it was announced in court an agreement had been made regarding adjustment of the claims.

WEST POINT REMOVAL SOUGHT IN HOUSE BILL
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(UP)—A drive to obtain the removal of West Point Military Academy from its historic site high above the Hudson river was begun in the house today.

Representative John J. McSwain, democrat, South Carolina, introduced a bill in the house which would permit Secretary of War Hurley to invite states or other political subdivisions to submit offers and inducements such as lands or money for relocation of the academy.

The movement started in the house military affairs committee room recently when a bill was under consideration for the purchase of 13,000 additional acres of land adjoining the

Famous Dancer Strengthens Toes By Novel Golf Exercise

Madame Lola Menzell playing her original game of "toe golf."

Lola Menzell, world-famous danseuse who, since her retirement less than a year ago has made her home in Atlanta, is credited with many innovations in the art of toe dancing. She is, for instance, the inventor of the "Menzell shoe," which has a Cuban heel attached, adding greatly to the shapeliness and beauty of toe dancing slippers.

Madame Menzell originated a novel form of exercise for strengthening a dancer's toes. She goes out to a golf links and plays a round of golf, but hits the ball with her toes instead of with a club, while she is perched on the toes of the other foot. She says she can get between 30 and 40 yards distance to the kick.

Madame Menzell will be the principal attraction at the Pavlova memorial dance program to be given Thursday night at the Woman's Club auditorium. She will include in her numbers "The Dying Swan" and most famous of the Pavlova creations, dancing it in black costume as a silent tribute to the incomparable Anna, whose death occurred a few weeks ago. Madame Menzell is a friend for years of the Pavlova.

The program Thursday night is presented by Sonia Solomonoff and will include the elaborate ballet "Christmas Eve in Moscow," first shown some weeks ago at the city auditorium. In private life Madame Menzell is Mrs. Solomonoff.

Part of the proceeds of the memorial program are to go to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

present properties. The bill was reported favorably today. The land is needed to protect the academy's water supply and furnish it with rifle and small artillery ranges as well as a flying field.

New Art Gained By Barbaric Era, Declares Bailey
Every invasion of an advanced, refined civilization by barbarians has resulted in progress that later surpassed the culture that had been wiped out, declared Henry Turner Bailey, noted authority on art and education, who spoke Tuesday night at the High Museum of Art. His subject was "The Influence of Barbaric Invasion."

Mr. Bailey drew a parallel between modern art and the futuristic and cubists, and the civilizations of the past that have bowed to savage conquerors. We traced the course of such invasions from the earliest known civilization, that of Crete, which was overrun by barbarous Greeks, through the Grecian culture, overthrown by Rome and the Romans, overthrown by Goth and Arab, and others.

Coming down to modern times, Mr. Bailey declared that the state of Massachusetts today is suffering from invaders. "Not only democrats," he stated, "but people from all parts of Europe are swarming in the old New England state and wiping out the fine old standards of her older settlers. But something better than ever will eventually come, of that we may be assured."

Mr. Bailey then drew the parallel in the world of art. He described the decadent art of the mid-Victorian era, when the vast majority of art productions were really mere "pretty nothings."

Then, the speaker said, from 1900 to 1925, the art world suffered under the most barbaric invasion it ever knew. "The age of futurism, of cubism, of individualism, of modernism," he said, "has passed, however, and, during the past ten years, the world of art has seen the emergence of art ideals and productions finer than it ever knew before. 'The splendid art of today,' said Mr. Bailey, 'is refreshing, vigorous, telling the true story of life. It has retained enough of the barbarism that preceded it to be vigorous and strong and enough of the prettiness of mid-Victorianism to be beautiful and lovely.' Approximately 100 people attended the lecture at the museum, which was given under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Art Association, with no charge to the public.

70-PIECE ORCHESTRA COMING WITH 'ROXY'
A symphony orchestra of seventy pieces, the same that used to delight tens of thousands of radio listeners at every "Roxy hour," will accompany Roy and his entire gang when they come to the Fox theater on Wednesday, February 25, for two performances under the auspices of the Yasrab Temple.

The entire proceeds of these two concerts are to go to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. The theater management has turned the house over to Yasrab for the day. One program will be given at 2:30 and one at 8:30.

S. L. Rothafel, the famous "Roxy" himself, will be in charge, introducing the famous singers, comedians, dancers and musicians. Topping the list of almost a hundred famous stars in the organization is Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, while other well known entertainers from the Metropolitan Opera Company and from the choicest list of radio stars, are to be heard.

Tickets are now on sale at a special booth in the Fox theater lobby and at the Cable Piano Company.

McChesney Slated.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Nathan William McChesney, of Chicago, is slated to succeed the late C. J. Dickema as minister to the Netherlands. His early appointment is under serious consideration by President Hoover.

Wild West Replaces Circus for 'Big Bill'

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(UP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson replaced his "jackass circus" today with a wild west show in the furtherance of his campaign for re-nomination.

The mayor's principal opponent, Judge John H. Lyle, incidentally, got himself all tangled up in the resultant traffic jam and had to stand first on one foot and then on the other while the mayor's voice boomed over loudspeakers to the crowds hemming in the judge.

"Lyle isn't a jackass. To call him that would insult the jackass. Lyle is a nut, a chimpanzee."

The judge finally freed himself from the throngs jamming Randolph street in front of the Garrick theater.

SENATE PASSES BILL REINSTATING MIDDIES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The senate tonight passed a bill to direct the reinstatement of two midshipmen in the naval academy who were dismissed for escorting two girl companions dressed in men's clothing into the academy mess hall.

The midshipmen are Lawrence L. Myatt, of Massachusetts, and Miller S. Burgin, of Florida.

Senators Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, and Fletcher, democrat, Florida, sponsored the resolution.

SMALL PRODUCERS HIT BY OIL FIRMS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Passage of the Hoch bill to divorce major oil companies from their interstate pipeline was demanded today by independent oil producers before the house commerce committee.

At the same time the committee received a letter from the interstate commerce commission refusing to "oppose or approve" the measure by Representative Hoch. The Kansas republican, however, interpreted the commission's statement as "distinctly favorable" to his bill.

Meanwhile opponents of any restriction on oil importations continued testimony against the Capper-Garber bill before the ways and means committee. The measure would limit importations to 10,000,000 barrels annually for three years.

Secretary Mellon informed the committee the question of limiting oil imports was purely a congressional matter.

The treasury secretary expressed this opinion in a letter to Chairman Hawley of the committee which is considering the Capper-Garber bill to limit importations to 10,000,000 barrels annually for the next three years.

"The treasury department expresses no opinion as to the policy involved which is one for the congress to determine," Mellon said in response to a request for his position.

He added, however, it was believed there would be no difficulty on the part of the treasury in enforcing the bill if it became a law.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 17.—(NANA)—Another of the Hollywood bachelors has gone out of circulation. Charlie Farrell's marriage to Virginia Valli was expected momentarily by this village. Farrell had told his friends he and Virginia would be married, some months back. Then his mother died, and affairs became complicated, and it looked as if wedding bells would have to be put off for a while.

This morning the colony says: "Charlie and Virginia are married at last. And Janet?"

For you cannot dispossess the Hollywood mind of the fact that Charlie Farrell and Janet Gaynor should have been paired in real life as on the screen. They know that Mrs. Lydell Peck is thoroughly tied up in her career; that she and her young husband fondly hold hands at all parties, that they seem sufficient to each other. But they just always liked the idea of the Farrell-Gaynor romance.

Of all the stars who have flashed across this horizon, Charlie Farrell has best kept his head. A poor young extra who lived in a shabby little room, he was swung into fame when Frank Borzage chose him for the role of Chico in "Seventh Heaven." Janet Gaynor—another little supernumerary of the silent days, was chosen for the lead. They both became famous stars.

But in these days Charlie Farrell went everywhere with Janet Gaynor. When she was shooting a scene he was there on the lot to watch. And on days when she was not working but Charlie was, his severest critic, Janet Gaynor, was there, head on one side, to tell him just what she thought about his work.

Then Virginia Valli came into the scene. And Lydell Peck saw Janet Gaynor. But the Hollywood beauties had small chance at Charlie Farrell. These two ladies exclusively occupied his interest from the moment he became a star.

Handsome, salaried, personable to a degree, sought after beyond most of the stars, Charlie Farrell still did not become a beau ideal for various blondes. When Virginia Valli was in New York recently in a theatrical venture, Charlie Farrell took her best friend to the Hollywood openings and to parties.

So while one of the handsomest bachelors in the colony has gone out of circulation, not many Hollywood ladies had an opportunity to chain him to their chariot wheels.

Louis Wolheim is doing well after his appendicitis operation. The illness precipitated by a three-weeks diet, which ended in a collapse of considerable seriousness, affected the stomach and, sympathetically, the vermiform appendix. Wolheim is considered one of the ablest actors in pictures today. His illness was further aggravated, it is said, by the fact that he was tremendously disappointed at not being able to play the role of the managing editor in "The Front Page."

Rudolph Valentino broke on the front pages again when Ruth Roland and other cinematists conversed with him via a spiritualist and found out just how things were going on the heavenly lot, so to speak.

It's easier to get publicity for Valentino, now many years dead, than for most of the living stars. It is the most interesting case of the survival of sex appeal after death, in existence. None of the actors who have sought to take his place, has been able to create the atmosphere of sultry passion as well as he did.

And one finally comes to the conclusion that ladies like sultry gentlemen... at least in the "pitchers."

Byrd To Give Awards To Boy Scouts Here

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will award special decorations to about 40 Eagle Scouts of Atlanta and vicinity when he appears at the city auditorium on the night of Thursday, February 26, to lecture on his experiences at the north and south poles.

Admiral Byrd is coming to Atlanta under the auspices of Agnes Scott College, where he will appear in the afternoon, following this in the lecture at the auditorium the same night. Many classes in Atlanta schools and colleges have arranged to hear the famous explorer in a body and it is expected that a tremendous crowd will be in attendance at both of his appearances.

The lecture, one of the most human and fascinating to be heard on the platform today, is illustrated with 9,000 feet of special motion pictures made on the admiral's two-year trip into the antarctic, during which he flew over the south pole. These are not the pictures already shown in the regular theaters, but a special selection made by Admiral Byrd himself to illustrate his talk.

Seats for the night lecture at the auditorium will go on sale at Cable Piano Company on Saturday morning. The splendid loud-speaking device which was used at the auditorium for the recent religious forum will again be installed, so that everyone in the huge building will be able to hear clearly.

TURK WHO ESCAPED GALLOW'S RECAPTURED
ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 17.—(UP)—A dervish rebel who escaped from the gallows wandered into a village after two weeks in the mountains and was captured today, nearly starved.

The prisoner, who was among 23 dervishes sentenced to hang for their part in the recent religious revolt against the republic, will be taken to Menemen, on the east coast of Asia Minor, to be hanged on the gallows which still await him.

The dervish broke away from his guards the morning the others were hanged at individual gallows in Menemen, seat of the fanatical uprising, and disappeared in the crowd. He and his fellows had been convicted of seeking to restore the caliphate in Turkey.

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolff

INSTALLMENT XII.

Then, one night, he was at Emma's and Martha came in with some people he didn't know very well. Tack wasn't with her, nor was Ross. She looked around; as Peter, and came over.

"Have you got to stay with this crowd?" she whispered. "They seem to be getting ready to move on."

"No," he said—truthfully enough, though, by that time, he had committed any crime in the social decalogue to please her. "Stay with me, then," she said. "I can't stand the people I'm with. I lost Tack hours ago—Heaven knows what became of him."

So, five minutes later, they found themselves, side by side, on two stools at the end of the bar, in a corner of the room; in the only place in Emma's, perhaps, where two people could talk by themselves with some chance of not being overheard.

Not that, at first, they talked much. Martha looked as she had the first night he'd seen her in this same room. Her eyes were dull; her beauty was dimmed and shadowed by a harsh and acrid mood. She was nervous and irritable; she snapped up Peter's attempts to make talk until he, too, grew silent.

"I'm sorry, Peter," she said. "I'm beastly—I know it. I wouldn't blame you if you walked out on me."

"You know I won't," he said, and laughed at her. "Anything the matter—specially, I mean?"

"Plenty," she said. "Don't ask me what. I don't want to talk about it." They were still sitting there, still silent, when Evan Ross came in, with Rita Gould. Peter saw the sudden flame in Martha's eyes; the stiffening of her shoulders. And it was as if anger passed from her into him. He felt, and it was something new for him, a queer tension of nerves and muscles; a nervous irritability to which he was altogether unaccustomed.

Martha turned to him abruptly. "I want to go home, Peter," she said. "Do you mind?"

He did, mind, damnably. He disliked Ross, by this time, with a definite, active dislike, and he hated Rita Gould. He didn't want them to be able to drive Martha from this place by coming into it. But he said nothing of all this.

"All right," was what he did say. He got the check, and paid it, and slid down from his stool. Without another word he and Martha went out. Benny, the fat man by the elevator, stared at them for a second; he added fuel to the fire that was raging in Peter's head, and found a taxi, and, still with nothing to say to one another, started across town. All the way across, in the cab, they didn't speak. Martha sat, staring straight ahead of her, one hand tapping her knee, nervously, until Peter thought the tiny sound would madden him. But he, too, kept quiet.

"Come on up," she said, when he hesitated, in the lobby. "I don't know whether Tack's home—I don't want to go in the house alone, anyway."

The penthouse was lighted, but that meant nothing; Kadi knew that. Martha hated coming into a dark house, and always left lights on when he went home. Tack was in, though; he was in the living room, hunched up in a chair. He got up, stiffly, as they entered, and stood, rather unsteadily, staring at them.

"Hello," he said. "Hello, Pete! 's you, is it?"

"Yes, it's Peter. What of it?" said Martha, dangerously.

They'd had a quarrel earlier that night. Peter knew the signs; by now, he'd suspected it, anyway, at Emma's, when Martha had said that she'd lost Tack.

"Nothing of it," said Tack now. "Guess I'll go to bed. Good night."

Martha didn't speak. "Good night, Tack," said Peter. Then turned and walked, still unsteadily, from the room. Martha sat down; she still stared straight ahead, as if she weren't seeing anything.

"Give me a cigaret, will you, please, Peter?" she asked.

He found one of hers, in a box, and gave it to her; then, suddenly, all in a moment, as he held a light, something in him broke. "Martha!" he said. "Oh, my dear—let me go on this way—"

"What else am I to do?" she asked in a queer, dead voice. "You can't go on this way—you can't!" he said, again. "Anything would be better than this. I—oh, what's the use? It's not as if you and Tack cared—as if either one of you cared! I wouldn't tell you then, but—Martha—don't you know I love you?"

Something in her eyes stopped him. "Peter—don't!" she said. "I—yes, I know. I knew it before you did, I think. Peter—this is the rottenest thing I've ever done! I knew—and I let you go on, because I needed you. When I knew, all the time, that I didn't care for you—when, all the time, I was in love with someone else."

Even then he didn't understand. "But—" he said. "Tack—I thought—"

"Tack!" Her voice rang out, almost hysterically. "Tack—! Oh, no—no—"

Peter stared at her. The anger that had overcome him at Emma's, that had never, really, quite let go its hold on him, swept over him again.

"Martha—don't!" he said, sharply. "You sound—it's as if what they said about you were true—about Ross—"

She looked at him, gently. "But, my dear—of course it's true," she said.

The crazy thing, the incredible thing, as it seemed to Peter now, looking at the faintly brightening sky in the east, was that, in effect, they had let it go for the moment. But, actually, they had had no more choice than the silent, watching policemen on the roof gave him now. Martha was utterly worn out that night; her exhaustion had been evident in her voice, in her drooping eyes, in the sagging of her whole body.

And, too, somewhere nearby, there had been Tack, who might be asleep or might not, and might, in either case, at any moment, come blundering out.

"My dear—" Martha had said. She was the one to speak, because, just then, Peter couldn't. "I'm so sorry—so terribly, terribly sorry. I've been a perfect beast—and I suppose I'll go right on being one. But I can be honest with you, at least—I owe you that much. Only—not now—"

"I'll tell you all I can—I want to. I'll tell you as much of it all as is mine to tell—everything that doesn't ding other people in. I want to—oh, I do."

She was standing up, by that time, and he went to her, and took her hand, and kissed it. She snatched it away.

"Oh—" she cried, and her voice broke, in a sob. "Oh, Peter—don't—"

He turned away from her then, and went, without looking back once. In the street, for a moment, any one seeing him might have thought of him as they would have thought of Tack; he didn't, in that first block, walk very steadily. But then he pulled himself together, and he did very well until, finally, over on Third avenue, he found a taxi. In the cab he leaned back, wearily. He wasn't thinking at all, really, and when he got home, he let his clothes drop anywhere, and got into bed, and fell asleep at once, as if he had been drugged.

Something happened to his brain, though, in the night. He woke up early, considering the time he'd gone to bed, and the state he'd been in, and he woke up, moreover, with his mind clear, and active, and coldly, resolutely angry and determined. He wasn't shocked, oddly enough, and he wasn't at all minded to attach finality of any sort to what Martha had told him.

YOU TO READ WHAT THE DENTISTS SAID

A LEADING research institution made an investigation among 50,000 dentists as to the best type of dentifrice to take care of teeth and gums. Read the summary of the replies received:

- 98% of the answers stated that germ acids most frequently cause tooth decay and gum irritation;
- 95% agreed that the most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet;
- 85% stated that the best product to prevent these acids from causing decay and irritating the gums is Milk of Magnesia.

Surely this is convincing evidence that Squibb Dental Cream will protect your teeth and gums. For it is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia.

There are dozens of different dentifrices and countless conflicting theories. And it would scarcely be strange if you are sometimes confused about the subject. But thousands of dentists overwhelmingly agree on one kind of dentifrice.

Try Squibb's. It cleans beautifully—and so safely. It contains no grit, no astringent, nothing which might injure. You'll like the way it refreshes your mouth. But most of all you'll value the effective care it helps you give your teeth and gums.

JONES, SARAZEN, SMITH, GOLDEN PLAY TODAY

How Could You?

Ed Danforth
The first three elements of the

Wayward Boys, the Man Without a Mind, who for nigh on to 40 years has been Boswelled by Ed Danforth, filed suit today for an injunction to prohibit Danforth from exercising his right of Danforth's signature appears bracketed with Rudy Valle and Clara Jew in the Bobby Jones exhibition match program that will be widely circulated today at East Lake.

"It looks like a sinister plot to discredit me," Wayward declared today. "For years I have been 'it,' if you know what I mean. Some commentators made it 'it,' but the fact remains I have supplied the personality for the firm."

"How this propaganda has come out with my manager's name posted between the 'it' man of the megaphone and the 'it' girl of the photophone. It makes me look bad on the play. What is this Danforth trying to do anyhow, grab my act?"

Editor's Note—Personally I don't see how I can afford to appear at the charity match. Some things are sacred to a young man. But I am cured of ever sending my autograph out recklessly at the request of charming young ladies. "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust, etc., etc."

WHEN MEN WERE GREEKS.

We moderns who look on the feats of our contemporary athletes with pride should not take too much for granted. Men were men in other days. Delving into tomes of history sometimes makes us blush for our pallid performances in certain sports.

Our best marks in the high jump, for instance, are a bit over six feet; our broad jumpers rarely clear 25 feet. These are nothing to the feats of athletes performed by the Greeks of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

While twisting idly on a stool at the counter of Hanjaros, across the street, waiting for a cup (or mug) of coffee, I picked up a copy of "The Ahepa," an illustrated magazine issued by the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. Therein was an article dealing with the early days of the Greek revolution when the people fought to remove the Turkish yoke.

Freedom loving Greeks of that day fled to the mountains and formed bands of "klephts." When not engaged in harrying the Turks, their amusement was in games of skill and strength. To quote from the article:

"Nkottaras, the famous captain (of one of these bands), could jump over seven horses standing abreast, and others could clear if one leap three wagons filled with thorns to the height of eight feet. Their powers of abstinence were not less surprising. A band of klephts have been known to combat during three days and nights without eating, drinking or sleeping."

THOSE PUNY MOUNTAINEERS.

Until I chanced on this morsel from Grecian history, I had held to certain tenets or dogmas. One was that Greek athletic supremacy dated with the Roman conquest. Another was that "those mountaineers," famed in song and story as having hairy ears and rugged constitutions, were the last word in hard-boiled eggs.

Both these concepts must be abandoned. Latter day athletes cannot jump over seven horses or three wagons filled with thorns.

And the endurance of our strong men is puny compared to those old klephts who fought three days and three nights without food or rest—hacking away with a broadsword and squinting through the sights of a musket for relaxation.

Our grid stars are 60-minute men, giants of marvels of endurance if they can play through a whole football game without relief. A basketball team that plays two 20-minute periods without substitution are gluttons for punishment. Pitchers who can twirl two games of approximately an hour and 45 minutes each in one day are iron men. Boxers who can longer than 10 rounds are—well, they are all running billiard halls or ranches.

We have done much in developing great speed for short distances and in games of skill and concentration, but at the old strong-back stuff we are decadent.

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 17.—(P)—Byrd Douglas, president of the Mobile club of the Southern association, announced today that he had purchased Howard Freigau, an infielder, from the Indianapolis American association team. The purchase price was not announced.

RAIN HALTS PLAY. PUNTA GORDA, Fla., Feb. 17.—(P)—Rain today caused postponement of the south Florida tennis championship tournament matches. The steady rainfall kept the racket slingers off the courts today, but clearing skies promised resumption of the play to-morrow.

FANS APPLAUD MAX'S SHOWING IN EXHIBITION

Strib Compares Favorably With Champion; Goodrich, Tunney Win.

By Ralph McGill.

Max Schmeling, the world's heavyweight champion, showed three rounds of exhibition boxing at the auditorium Tuesday night before a crowd of about 4,000 who gave the champion a good greeting.

Schmeling showed plenty of speed, a surprising amount of it, in fact. He devoted most of the three rounds to hooking with his left, following with an occasional right hook. He also gave the fans a look at his bobbing and weaving system of fighting, so reminiscent of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion.

GOOD WORKOUT. Schmeling worked against two of his sparring partners, Pedro Lopez, a big fellow, worked the first and third round. Lopez was a good target and Schmeling hooked him soundly with rights and lefts to the face and kidneys. He made Lopez miss several times with a bob and a weave. Lopez was groggy from a knockdown in the third.

Lew Barber, a heavyweight with considerable speed, worked the second round and gave Schmeling more of a workout. He landed lightly twice. Both he and Schmeling wore protective armor about their heads and faces.

Fans were interested in the comparison between the style of Max Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling, the two being scheduled to meet in June for the title.

STRIB GETS EDGE. Stribling should have a slight edge over Schmeling, although the German showed but little in the sparring on which to base a comparison.

This much was obvious, however, Schmeling is a hooker. Stribling is a straight puncher, at least more than Schmeling. This will work to an advantage.

Schmeling looked to be rather open for a left. Twice Barber feinted with a left and drew an opening for a straight right which he did not follow up. Schmeling was smiling throughout the sparring and was undoubtedly a bit careless. More than he will be in any fight with the title at stake.

REAL BATTLE. The champion is well set-up, moves quickly and is apparently in good condition. Stribling will have a real battle on his hands with a man who is as fast and who can punch whom a hard. Superior experience should win for the Georgian.

The supporting fight card was a fair one. In the main, it was a fair one. In the main, it was a fair one. In the main, it was a fair one.

Star Irish Guard Dies in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17.—(P)—John A. Weible, an integral unit in the powerful forward wall behind the famed Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, died today.

Weible died of a heart ailment at the age of 27 in Mercy hospital, where he was serving his internship. An emergency operation for removal of his appendix was performed last week.

To speak of Notre Dame five years ago was to think of one of the greatest backfield quartets in college history—Miller, Layden, Crowley and Stuhldreher. But down on the line were some of the country's best linemen, among them Weible, left guard.

Today one of the Four Horsemen, Elmer Layden, now athletic director at Duquesne University here, paid his tribute to the ability of Weible with one word—"dependable."

The body was taken to Erie, Pa., where the funeral will be held Friday or Saturday. Teammates were advised of the young man's death and it was said a number of them would attend the funeral. Weible was a son of Dr. John A. Weible, E223-24-25.

After graduation from Notre Dame, Weible obtained his M. D. degree at Vanderbilt University. During 1927 he served as assistant football coach at Duquesne.

Princeton Golfer Wins Medal Honor

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., Feb. 17.—(P)—Ellsworth Giles, Jr., former Princeton golfer, won the qualifying round in the Atlantic Coast tournament here today with a 76 over the No. 1 course of the Southern Pines Country Club. Charles J. Davis, Thousand Island, N. Y., and N. C. Durham, Brooklyn, tied for the runner-up position with 86s.

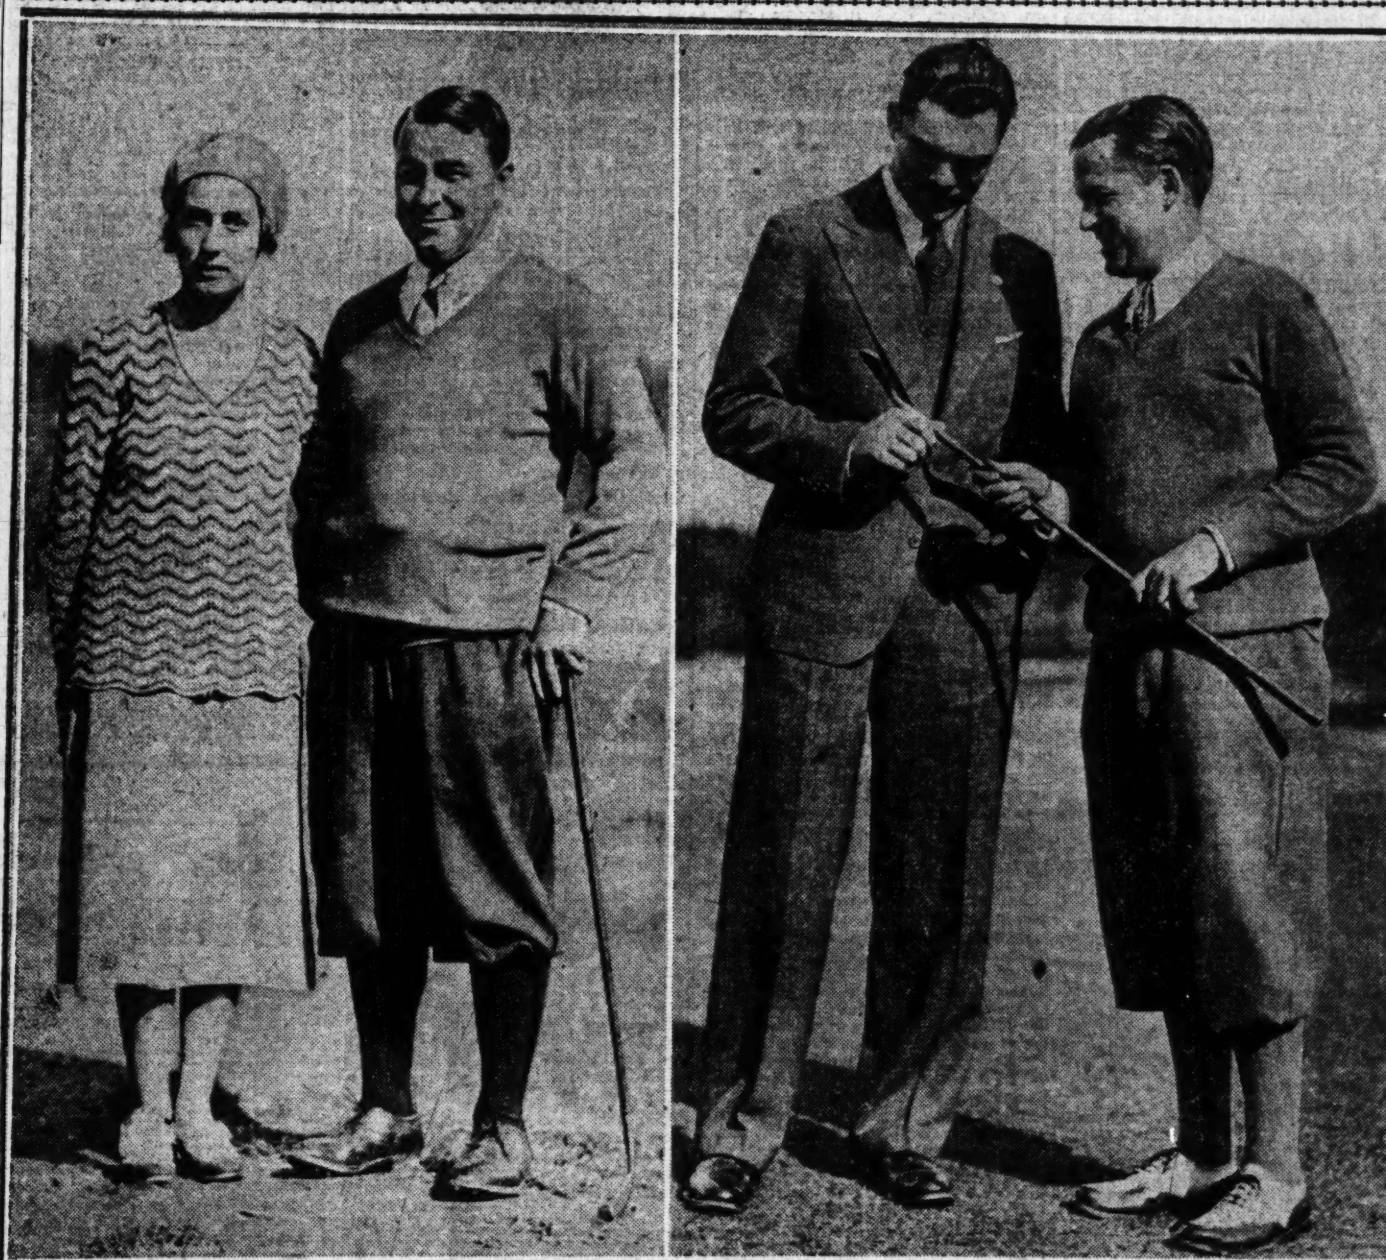

Success Indicated For New Ball Loop

R. J. Spiller, vice president of the Atlanta Cracker, said Tuesday night that present indications seemed to hint success for the new southern baseball league proposed by him Monday.

He has received favorable replies from four of the seven cities questioned as to their willingness to enter the league and had one request from a city not on the original list.

Replies from the other cities are expected today, and definite action will be taken shortly.

Leaders In Sport World Snapped Here

photographed together on the links. On the right are two sport kings. Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, is shown inspecting the famous putter of Bobby Jones, king of all golfers. Max visited the famous Georgian while he was getting his game ready for today's match.

Max Just One of Dubs As He Watches Bobby

Heavyweight Champion Marvels at Golf of Jones; Says Strib Above Sharkey.

By Ralph McGill.

MAX SCHMELING, world's boxing champion, let his jaw sag and his eyes start just like any other golf novice Tuesday afternoon as he watched Bobby Jones, the only four-time champion golf ever known, step up to a tee and bust one at East Lake Club.

The champion has something of what Bobby has. Not as much, but some. He has something of that perfect rhythm in a feint with his left shoulder and makes the swing. But he had just enough of it to know that he was watching the master when he watched Bobby Jones blaze away for a 33 on the first nine at East Lake Tuesday afternoon.

"LOOK at him," he said. "Just as easy. Just walks up and hits. In his voice there was that same quality that comes to all the dubs when they watch Jones. And Schmeling, his black-poll head shaking in admiration, was just a golf dub who shoots around a 100, waiting the greatest champion that competitive sport ever produced.

Schmeling has a natural instinct for golf. There is something in him when he is still. There is a grace in his build, a movement, an appearance.

Golf Is Next. NEXT to boxing he "goes for" golf. It is his favorite outdoor sport. He is now a younger man, just 28 years old. But boxing championships bring fame and fortune. He already has a villa in Germany with a golf course on the grounds.

With Schmeling, and heading the entourage, is one of the best-known figures in boxing, Joe Jacobs, the manager. Had it not been for Joe Jacobs, a small man with a large perception of what is going on, Max Schmeling would not now be champion of the world.

Jacobs' Climb.

IT WAS Jacobs who climbed into the ring as Schmeling lay writhing on the canvas and began shrilling in a very shrill voice indeed that his man had been fouled. It was he who brought action out of chaos. Joe Jacobs, slight of figure, graying a bit about the temples, has a pair of the keenest eyes I have ever seen.

"How did you happen to get into the fight business?" I asked him.

Just an accident," he said. "When I was just a young fellow around the neighborhood there was a great friend of mine who was a fighter. He was Johnny Moran. Well, sir, first thing you know I was his manager."

"I had five world champions since then, Max being the fifth. He's a great boy. No bad habits. Trains well. Doesn't burn up near the energy that Jack Dempsey used."

JACKETS FACE 'BAMA TONIGHT

Tech Squad Still Crippled as Champions Invade Flats.

By Herb Clark.

Dealt a body blow by the faculty, slipped a rabbit punch by flu while still agonized by the effects of a first slugging, Georgia Tech's staggering basketball team will try conclusions with the Crimson "Tide" courtmen from Alabama, defending Southern conference title, in the air-sym at the Flats at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Jackets are fresh from a number of beatings. Those which have crippled the team were accompanied by a pair on the courts, the first at Athens Saturday with the Bulldogs and the second at the Flats with the Kentucky submerine—the Engineers into abject submission.

Coch Mandorff, with a badly-riddled squad, cast about in both these games in the hopes of finding a new quintet which could hold stand and set the pace in action. Thus far his efforts have not been rewarded. Monday he used Gregory at center in place of Perkins and gave Phillips forward berth to Rogers, sending MacArthur to guard as Wages' running mate. MacArthur did well at his new post. Both Gregory and Rogers showed their lack of experience, but both, Rogers particularly, gave indications of being prospective first-string material. It is probable that the same five which took up the cudgels against Kentucky will face Alabama tonight.

Should they, it is also probable that they will do a far better job of work. Monday was their first session together. That co-operation, with a day of practice Tuesday, will help them.

Perkins and Wages, both of whom turned up in poor health Monday, are reported a step or two further along the road to recovery and will both see action Saturday night. In Athens they will strengthen the Jacket squad at the point where it may conceivably be given a chance against the Tide.

A. A. C. Quintet Faces LaGrange.

Opening its final week of play, the Atlanta Athletic Club basketball team will face the LaGrange Y. M. C. A. quintet at 8 o'clock tonight on the club court. The club will conclude the season Saturday night in Athens against the University of Georgia.

Tonight will be the second meeting of LaGrange and the club this year. Coach Ben's Red and White team won an easy victory some time ago in LaGrange and will be out to keep their season's record high.

Starting off slowly against Furman University in the first game of the season the club has picked up in leaps and bounds and every game except that first one has been won.

A team of Moore and Player, forwards; Hudson, center, and Amorous and Stockler, guards, will likely start against LaGrange tonight.

"Naturally I am disappointed, but that's all in the game," Magnolia said. The message from the commission board.

"Your application to referee the Carnera-Maloney fight has been denied."

JUNIOR LEAGUE EXHIBITION SET FOR EAST LAKE

Famous Quartet Will Start Great Match at 2 O'Clock.

Maxie To Watch Golf Match Today

Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, will stop over in Atlanta long enough to watch Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith and Johnny Golden play their exhibition golf match for the Junior League over the old East Lake course this afternoon.

The Black Urban, who followed Bobby yesterday before his fight at the auditorium, was delighted with the experience and decided to add to it today.

By Ed Danforth.

For the last time on any stage, perhaps, Bobby Jones and three of the greatest American professionals met today on a golf course in public competition.

Bobby and John Golden, winner of the $25,000 Azusa Caliente open golf championship, will play Horton Smith, hailed as the next king of golf, and Gene Sarazen, the national open champion of 1922, in a four-ball match. The proceeds of the sale of gallery tags will be devoted to the Henrietta Egleston Memorial hospital fund which is administered by the Junior League.

For the day the eyes of the golf world are turned to Atlanta. The competition means nothing in the championship annals of the year but it carries interest keener than many formal events have held. Bobby Jones is making his first and perhaps his last public appearance of 1931. Golfers wonder how his game has fared since he abdicated the world golf throne with four championships in his keeping.

WITH GOLDEN.

His partner will be John Golden, a quiet, methodical shotmaker and a tournament star always close up with the leaders. Golden finished in fifth place behind Bobby in the Interclubs during that blistering week of the national open. Golden is a familiar figure to Atlanta golfers for he tied Johnny Golden for the first place in the southern open in 1927 and won a sensational play-off that was decided on the eighteenth green.

Smith and Sarazen will be partnered. Smith, "The Tall Pine of Joplin," someone called him, was one of the most consistent pursuers of Bobby Jones last year. He defeated Bobby by one stroke in an open championship at Savannah but at Augusta fell 13 strokes behind him in the southeastern open. They have played the ocean and Smith finished three places back of Bobby in the British open. Back they came to here, where Smith was third place in five strokes behind the champion. Now Bobby has retired and Smith will have no more chances to challenge and pass the Atlanta unless he does so today.

GENE SARAZEN.

Gene Sarazen swept through the open field at Skaneateles, Chateaufort in 1922 and passed Bobby and John Black who were tied for the lead. Since then Gene has been always good but never a national winner. His play always has been brilliant around the winter circuit. He was the first of the visiting professionals to arrive in Atlanta and he played East Lake yesterday afternoon.

The match will start at 2 o'clock over the old course at East Lake. Arrangements have been made to handle a large gallery. Aside from watching these great shotmakers in action the average golfer will be interested to see how the new light golf ball performs when played by experts. The public at large, of course, is invited to attend. There are 250 seats at $2.50 and every dime of it will go to the fund. The visiting professionals en route to Florida for winter tournaments have generously agreed to break their trip and play here without a fee.

Gamecocks Beaten By Gators, 39 to 20

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 17.—(P)—In a remarkable burst of speed, the University of Florida scored 28 points in the final half to beat the South Carolina Gamecocks 39 to 20 in their conference basketball game here tonight. It was the fourth win the Gators had scored this season over South Carolina.

Florida tied at the half by 11 to 10, but the rest period seemed to put new vigor in the Gator attack, while they held the Gamecocks to four points in the last half.

Ramsay To Attend Bob Jones' Dinner

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)—Herbert H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf Association, has accepted an invitation to attend the dinner at Chicago at which Bobby Jones will receive the James E. Sullivan memorial medal, recently awarded to him by the United States Golf Association.

Ramsay's ruling removed Jones from the amateur ranks. He will be one of the speakers at the function, February 20.

BULLDOGS SHOW IMPROVED FORM IN SCRIMMAGE

Mehre Sends Team Into Hard Drill Despite Muddy Field.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 17.—Through two hours of a gray afternoon, spiced with spots of rain, the Georgia Bulldogs, the football ones, scrimmaged for the second time this year and in doing so they looked ragged, but it was the kind of raggedness that gave hints of better times to come.

Calling into action all the forces of his four-team squad, Harry Mehre sent his squad through its paces in the good old-fashioned way. The boys were willing to give and take with all the abandon of youth, and as a result they were splattered with mud at Sanford field, mud that was the result of a steady rain that fell all through Monday night.

Tactics used today were the same as in the first scrimmage last Saturday, and Georgia's mud-spattered warriors looked a little better than they did in their first real mixup of the year. They were tackling with more sureness today. They knew their plays better than they did Saturday, because Harry Mehre had given them quite a strenuous afternoon Monday, working on the line, the backs, the end, and the fullback. They forgot a lot of their plays, and half the time a tackle would get a beautiful man into a run ball is like going to sleep at the throat of the limited.

Harry Mehre picked a team to do a lot of offensive work Saturday and that same team went into action today because the eleven youngsters on it had come through with a little stuff the first afternoon the Bulldogs scrimmaged. Lewi Batchelor centered for the team, Tiger Bennett and Jim Harrison were the guards; Jim Hammy and Bobby Rose, tackles; Graham T. Ryville and Mack Crenshaw, ends; Sully Sullivan, quarterback; and Mott and Homer Key, halfbacks, and Jodie White, fullback.

There were others who broke into the line-up of that team before the offensive scrimmage was over, and as a matter of fact, the whole line-up was changed before the afternoon's session was finished. Louie Woolfson and Dick Maxwell didn't look bad when they went in at the two ends, and neither did any of the others when it came their turn to do relief work.

Quarterbacks are not a scarcity in the Bulldogs' ranks. Several of these varsity quarterbacks are not out for spring training. There are Sully Sullivan, already a letterman; Charlie Howard, and Charlie Hammy, and Captain-elect Austin Downes, Leroy Young and Tommy Moran are not out. Downes being excused from drill and Moran and Young being engaged in basketball activities.

Other scrimmages will follow on Thursday of this week.

No 'Darby' Victors In Derbys' Stables

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(P)—Here's a tip right out of the feed box on the English Derby: Don't bet on Lord Derby's nag nor on Lady Derby's—not unless you want to walk home. At the Pilgrims' luncheon to Sir Harry Armstrong, the retiring British consul general at New York, the American consul general, Albert Halstead, told Lord Derby he was backing Lady Derby's horse.

"I'm told," said Lord Derby, who as chairman of the meeting, "that members of the consular service are entitled to free transportation home. If your money is on either Lady Derby's entry or on my horse, I have to avail myself of that privilege."

Mack and Partner Winners at Golf

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 17.—(P)—Connie Mack, venerable pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics, teamed with Laurie Ayton, Chicago pro, to defeat Johnny Farrell and Charles E. Young, Sr., 3 and 2 in a golf match here today.

The veteran baseball impresario contends he was a big factor in today's victory, being on no less than four of the greens in two, not a small feat for any one who carries the weight of 68 years.

"When I get so I can't smile playing golf," Mack remarked, "I'll go back to baseball."

In reality it was Ayton's 34-34-68, three under par, which turned him and Mack up winners. Farrell's best was 72.

Connie Mack joins his world champion A's at Fort Myers Saturday.

MacPhail Takes Post at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 17.—(P)—Larry MacPhail, new owner of the Columbus American association baseball team, assumed the presidency of the club today and immediately announced that Harry (Nemo) Leibold would be retained as manager this season.

The team will train again this season at Lakeland, Fla., where the Senators have worked out for several years.

MacPhail and his associates attached no special significance to the fact that Warren Giles, president of the Rochester club in the International league, and Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, were present at the conference, reiterating their former statement that the Cardinals are not financially interested in the purchase of the Senators from Cincinnati.

T. H. S. Track Team Opens With Emory

Tech High track team will inaugurate the outdoor season this year with a dual meet with Emory Freshmen on April 4. The Smithies will have a meet nearly every week thereafter until the middle of May when they will attend the Asheville interscholastic events and defend the cup they won last year.

The national interscholastic will be held at Chicago this year on June 5 and 6, and any of the boys who show enough class to warrant the trip may get to take this meet in.

Augusta Tourney In Second Round

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Results in today's play for the Alfred S. Bourne golf trophy were:

E. D. Butler, Middletown, Conn., defeated W. R. K. Taylor, New York, 5 and 3; Earnest Merry, Augusta, defeated John H. Clapp, Washington, 2 and 1; Stewart Walter, Augusta, defeated Frederic E. Penber, Boston, 3 and 2; Bonwell Lee, Augusta, defeated H. A. Forsgren, Augusta, 4 and 3; W. C. Kilgore, Augusta, defeated G. Smith, Augusta, 1 up; H. E. Waller, Augusta, defeated Hal Reed, New York, 2 and 1; E. M. Wilson, Montreal, defeated J. K. Fraser, Westport, Conn., 4 and 3; Harold Mulhern, Augusta, defeated Roy Meriden, Augusta, 3 and 2.

SAVOLDI'S FOE IS CARTED OFF IN AMBULANCE

Former Notre Dame Grid Star 'Loves' Wrestling Game.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 17.—(P)—Jumping Joe Savoldi used the rough and ready tactics he learned as a Notre Dame fullback in a professional wrestling debut and sent his victim, Don Delong, to a hospital for repairs.

A cursory inspection in the ring where Delong lay writhing here last night, after going down under two body slams applied by Savoldi in rapid order, showed a dislocated shoulder and a bruised jaw.

The 22-year-old Italian, scaling 204 pounds, knocked Delong, a 222-pounder, to the mat three times with reverse headlocks before the match had fairly got under way.

Delong, billed as the French heavyweight champion, picked up Joe and slammed him down head-first. Joe was up later but he wrestled free and picking up Delong in a corner, positioned him with force in the center of the ring.

That crash accounted for Delong's ailing jaw and the first fall in 8 minutes 30 seconds.

Delong was spilled twice again with reverse headlocks after Savoldi skidded on his chin attempting a tackle that went awry against a man not nursing football at his heels.

Using the identical formula that brought about the first fall, Savoldi smashed the Frenchman to the mat and the second fall was scored in 1 minutes 2 seconds. Delong was removed in an ambulance.

When he was taken to his dressing room, but no one sorry he had inflicted any injuries. "But you know, if I didn't get him he'd have gotten me," said Savoldi. "Sure, I'm going to stay in this game, I love it," he told an admiring group of Kansas City Italians in their native tongue.

The erstwhile Notre Dame grid star admitted he had some anxious moments all day, waiting for the bout. "But now it's different. I'll be going into another football game."

When he goes to law school, either at DePaul or Northwestern next fall, he still expects to live higher than he did earning his living as a dishwasher at Notre Dame, for.

Figuring earnings on the basis of the $5,000 promoter gave him $250, said he got for his initial ring appearance, Savoldi received $280 a minute.

Wilson May Play On 'Star' Quintet

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 17.—Management of the basketball team of the Thomasville Y. M. C. A. has received a telegram from the manager of the All-Star League all-star team, who expects to play in a tournament scheduled to play here next week against the local "Y" quintet, stating that Mack Wilson will likely be here with the all-star team.

It was stated positively several days ago that "Mule" Haas of the Philadelphia Athletics, formerly with the Atlanta Southern league, would be one of the players on the all-star team, and many baseball and basketball fans of southwest Georgia and north Florida have since then waited to come here to witness the game and to see Haas.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)—Stocks advanced and declined rapidly today, but were more active when the market was in reverse, its direction at the close.

The sleepy response by a majority of the leaders to the prodings of bull operators plainly gave notice that a large amount of profit-taking and short selling was going on under cover of the rally and that the buying urge was not strong enough to overcome such selling.

Large offerings early in the afternoon converted previous advances of 2 to 7 points into losses of roughly the same size. There was a rebound from this decline, but liquidation was resumed in the late trading when the day's lowest prices were touched. Losses ranged from 1 to 10 points.

Sales were in the neighborhood of 4,000,000 shares, 800,000 of which changed hands in the last 30 minutes.

Stocks did not break in the forenoon when Vanadium, Auburn, Case and Worthington Pump advanced 5 to 7 points. However, they came reluctantly, although U. S. Steel and American Can did not retreat from their previous peaks.

U. S. Steel, which had been among the few pivotal stocks to sell 2 points higher, closed 2 lower and there were similar net losses in American Can, General Electric, American Telephone and Western Union.

Auburn Auto continued its exciting career, traveling between a low of 185 1/2 and a high of 205, which was the year's record price. Closing at 188 3/4, it was off 10 1/4.

Most traders took the view that the market was due for a reaction; others felt its optimism had already gone as far as could be justified by the current condition of business, however desirable a change in sentiment might be after 10 months of depression.

Nevertheless, some commission houses contended that investment and speculative buying was awaiting a decline and that the volume of such business would hold a break to moderate proportions.

There was little evidence of an actual business upturn in the day's news. Chrysler's 1930 earnings of 5 cents a share and its two and a quarter million loss in the last quarter was another of those chilling comments on what the country has been through.

Offsetting this bit of history was a forecast that several Detroit automobile makers were planning to increase their production schedules this week.

Wheat closed unchanged to half a cent higher in sympathy with a better export demand and bullish northernwestern weather. Corn gained slightly more and cotton rallied 10 to 12 points.

Foreign exchanges were dull, most of the Latin countries were in the midst of a Mardi Gras holiday.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(P)—Corn took a brisk upward swing today after a tumble to touch the season's bottom price record. The season's bottom price record, the shipping demand for corn had broadened out and was the best in some time. Wheat rallied with corn, but met with selling based on predictions of continued large receipts.

Corn closed unchanged, 3-4 to 1-1 1/2 cents advanced, wheat unchanged to 5-8 higher, oats 1-8 off to 3-8 up and provisions unchanged to 10 cents down.

Enlargement of shipping call for corn manifested itself principally in Chicago and at southwestern distributing centers. Simultaneously the volume of country offerings of corn showed a falling off. Active profit-taking by recent speculative sellers of corn contributed momentum to the advance which culminated just before the close.

An increase of 5,342,000 bushels in world stocks of wheat acted as a drag on wheat prices. Oats mainly followed wheat.

Provisions declined with hogs.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)—The

It was notable, however, that declines in prominent shares were less severe than the losses on the "big board." The more active issues, such as the utilities, generally followed the downward trend of the major market, but closing prices disclosed few losses of more than a point. The day's transfers aggregated 644,700 shares, compared to 567,000 yesterday.

United Light A and Middle West Utilities lost nearly a point each, while Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower yielded about 1/2. Insull Utility Investment declined 2 1/2.

Trends in industrial issues and specialties were mixed. In the oil prices were moderately lower.

DECLINE IN PETROLEUM

DECLINE IN PETROLEUM PRODUCTION REPORTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—American petroleum production last year was estimated today by the commerce department at 838,000,000 barrels, a decline of 100,000,000 barrels from the recent output of 1129.

The contraction in production was the result of a general campaign in the industry to prevent the creation of an oil surplus.

The summary showed that for the first time since 1920 oil producers had been successful in bringing about a reduction in the price of oil and oil products. On January 1, these totaled 512,797,000 barrels, 23,296,000 barrels less than January 1, 1930.

As additional evidence of the supply, the United States utilized imports of about 273,000 barrels of petroleum, refined or crude, during the year and exported 159,000 barrels.

American consumption of petroleum decreased slightly in 1930 for the first time in a long period, and was figured at a daily average of 2,520,000 barrels as compared with 2,567,000 barrels in 1929.

This decrease did not apply to motor fuel. American motorists used

Production of motor fuel—chiefly gasoline—rose to a new high record of 441,534,000 barrels in 1930, compared with 439,338,000 in 1929. The total gasoline and motor fuel stocks on hand January 1, however, were 40,541,000 barrels, compared with 43,281,000 January 1, 1930.

ment from the preceding week, and the first decrease in the average for that corporation since the beginning of the year.

CURB PLANS TO ADD INVESTMENT TRUSTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. —(AP)—The New York Curb Exchange has made tentative plans for listing shares of fixed investment trusts, it was learned today.

Stocks of many of these companies are now listed on the Chicago Curb Exchange, but the only market here is over the counter. Listing of the trusts would obviate the necessity of maintaining two separate markets. At represent most of the large trusts maintain bid prices for their certificates, which are sold at a fixed rate. The outstanding is estimated at about a billion dollars.

Robert H. Bean, executive secretary, characterized the decline as a seasonal reduction and pointed out that since November 30 acceptances
